

Sequatchee Valley News.

PUBLISHED AT
Sequatchee, Marion County, Tenn.
EVERY THURSDAY.

HILL & SON, EDITORS AND PUBLISHERS

Subscription Price, 50c. a Year in Advance

News and advertising matter to secure insertion must be handed in before 12 o'clock each Wednesday, or it may be too late for publication.

THURSDAY, MAY 20, 1909.

Land's Chapel.

Special to the News.

Mrs. Hickey, wife of T. J. Hickey, died Monday, May 10th, 1909, after a lingering illness. Sarah Leona Johnson was married to T. J. Hickey April 20, 1881. She was born May 14, 1863, and professed religion at Rev. James meeting at the Masonic Hall, and later joined the Baptist church and was baptized. She had been complaining about eight months but was able to sit up until about three weeks before her death. She was a good wife and a devoted mother. All who knew her were her friends. She lived a devoted christian life. By her death the community loses a good friend and neighbor, the family a good wife and a kind and loving mother. May God's richest blessings ever rest and remain with the family and bereaved ones. The good wife and loving mother has gone to that land of the blest where there is no more pain nor death. The sacred tie is broken on earth to be joined again in heaven. It seems hard to give up wife and mother but God's will must be done. The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away; blessed be the name of the Lord. I will say to the loved ones, weep not for Leona is not dead but sleeping to wake on that great resurrection morn and if we live a pure life as she lived before us, we will meet her again on that bright and happy shore where parting is no more. The mother has gone to meet her darling boys who have gone on before. She leaves a husband, four children and a host of friends and relatives to mourn her loss.

"I hear the low winds sweeping
Through every bush and tree,
Where my dear mother's sleeping
Away from home and me.
Tears from my eyes are flowing,
And sorrow shades my brow,
Cold in the grave she's sleeping,
I have no mother now."
"My life is oh so lonely,
My heart is troubled sore,
Her dearest presence only
Can make me weep no more.
She has gone from me to heaven,
Deep sorrow shades my brow,
The sacred tie is broken,
I have no mother now."

The interment took place Tuesday afternoon about 2:30 o'clock at the Rankin cemetery. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. A. D. Stewart, assisted by Rev. Jno. W. Carnes.

Monteagle.

Special to the News.

Revs. Henry Sherrill, of Providence and Tom Turner, of Roark's Cove, were on our streets Saturday and Sunday.

Bro. Turner preached at Summerfield Saturday night and at Monteagle Sunday night, and brother Sherrill preached at Summerfield Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Brown were in Tracy City stopping and swapping horses one day last week.

Mrs. Ed Shearer, who had a stroke of paralysis some months ago is still confined to her room, and is improving very slowly.

The ice cream supper given at the Monteagle Hotel, for the benefit of the W. O. W., was largely attended.

Mr. Parten is having his yard fence replaced with cement blocks which makes his beautiful home look more attractive.

W. L. Brown has been doing some much needed repair work on the Monteagle hotel in "topping off" the chimneys and other work that adds to its beauty.

Virgil Holcombe and others are out on a fishing "spree." It will be needless for any one to try to catch any fish after they are through (?)

Judge J. K. P. Pearson was in our town one day last week driving three or four little "tow headed" mules.

Rev. W. H. Crowl, the presiding elder of the United Brethren church will hold quarterly conference at Summerfield next Saturday night and Sunday.

Prof. and Mrs. Jas. Partin, of Providence, were mingling with friends on the Mountain Saturday and Sunday.

Lynn Hall says it is very easy riding for him when he uses a rocking chair in his spring wagon. He says, "I am rocking and riding."

The way some young people disturb public worship is a sin on the Christians for not having it stopped; and a disgrace to the ones who are so mischievous.

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Roberts and Dr. and Mrs. Chas. Hembree, of Tracy, were on our streets Sunday evening.

John Coury and son, Lyster, were on the mountain Saturday. Old Sox.

Mentions Him.

The Midland Methodist of May 12, published at Nashville, and an excellent church paper, makes the following notice of Rev. W. D. Dew, a man greatly esteemed here. Rev. Dew is always original in his derivations, doing much research in preparing his sermons, and we would be curious to know just how he interpreted the text. He is quite above the average preacher.

"Rev. W. D. Dew, preacher in charge of the Sequatchee Circuit, preached the opening sermon at the Harriman District Conference, May 5, from the words: 'Thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.' His interpretation of this difficult text was not in the track usually followed, but was quite as sane as any we have heard. If that sermon is a type of the man, he is quite above the average preacher."

DeWitt's Little Early Risers, the famous little liver pills, small, gentle and sure. Sold by Whitwell Drug Co. and J. W. Simpson.

Good Blood

Means good health, and Hood's Sarsaparilla has an unapproached record as a blood-purifier.

It effects its wonderful cures, not simply because it contains sarsaparilla but because it combines the richest remedial values of more than 20 different ingredients. There is no real substitute for it. If urged to buy any preparation said to be "just as good" you may be sure it is inferior, costs less to make, and yields the dealer a larger profit. Get Hood's Sarsaparilla today. In usual liquid form or in chocolate tablets known as Sarsaparilla.

Christopher, Ills.

Special to the News.

J. E. Migel left here Wednesday night for Knoxville, Tenn., where he will take charge of a class in physical culture in some college.

Postmaster Park carried the route mail yesterday for Mr. Standfield, who was detained at home on account of the serious illness of his son, Carl, who is very low with consumption.

Weddings have been the go up here this week. Esq. Jim Moorman performed his first marriage ceremony on Wednesday, May 12. The contracting parties were Herman Liksey and Miss Mande Bowlin, both of Zeigler. J. R. Biby says that Squire Jim has had nervous spells ever since.

Promptly at 5 o'clock Sunday evening, May 9, while Mrs. Lee Browning played the wedding march, the contracting parties, B. F. Lyday and Miss Blanche Sweet were united in the holy bonds of matrimony in the parlor of the north side hotel, Rev. W. A. Fish, of Benton, performing the ceremony, which was very impressive. Mr. Lyday is first engineer at the North Mines and both he and his bride have a host of friends who wish them many long years of happiness and prosperity. Mr. and Mrs. Lyday will remain at the Hotel until their new home in the northern part of town is completed.

Miss Kate Muggy, who left here a month or so ago with her father's family to locate at False, Oklahoma, returned to Christopher Monday. She was met at St. Louis by Mr. Joe Devine, where they were united in marriage. We wish them a long and happy life.

A small gas explosion occurred at the East Mines early Tuesday morning in which D. Geneire and August Montelle and two more men whose names we are unable to learn, were severely burned. On entering the pits in the morning it is customary out there for the miners, if they discover an accumulation of gas in their rooms, to use their coats to fan it out. This is what the unfortunate men were doing at the time of the accident. The gas was ignited from their lamps.

Two drivers were hurt at the East Mines last week. A shot firer, George Milson, an Englishman, was severely injured late Wednesday evening. He and his buddy had prepared their shovels but before discharging the same Milson lighted the gas to burn it out of the entry and the flames ignited the fuse connected with the dynamite and in this way it was discharged. Before he was expecting it the flying coal struck him in the face and on the head and badly disfigured him. His front teeth were knocked out and for a time it was thought he would lose both eyes but later reports say that his condition is not so serious as first thought, and it is now believed that he will recover without the loss of either eye.

Benton played Christopher this afternoon. The score was 9 to 2 in favor of Christopher. The Christopher team has not been beaten this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Cully are visiting friends in Duquoin today.

Tim Thomas is visiting friends in Herrin today.

Willie Weddle, of Herrin, visited John Arledge one day last week.

Miss Dixie Ballard, of DuQuoin, is visiting her sister, Mrs. John Arledge, today.

James Flemming visited his mother at Sunfield, Ill., Wednesday.

The mines are running five days a week here now.

Jack Riggs and T. J. Watts went to Big Muddy fishing this morning.

Mrs. John Leonard and Mrs. Harvey Griffith spent this afternoon with Mrs. John Arledge. Uncle Sam.

Coal City, Ga.

Special to the News.

The Red Men had a picnic at Aetna and everything went off nicely until just before it broke up. Some three or four smart Alex got gay and insulted one or two of the ladies there. Wonder what the sheriff was about that he didn't look into the trouble and see to the ones that were causing the disturbance? Some few men made threats that they intended to break up that picnic, but their intentions failed to succeed. There were somewhere between five and six hundred people at the picnic, and everybody seemed to enjoy themselves.

With they would start up work at this place as it is so lonesome.

Ye writer was sorry to hear of the storm sweeping Sequatchee Valley and destroying so much property. Jumbo.

Picnicked Here.

The Philomathean Society of Pryor Institute, a literary society conducted by the young gentlemen students, picnicked at the Blowing Spring Saturday. There was not a large attendance, but an enjoyable day was spent.

THE BEST medicine you can take to rid yourself of humors and clear your complexion, is Hood's Sarsaparilla—it's also THE CHEAPEST

Operetta Given.

PIKEVILLE, Tenn., May 19.—The operetta, "Golden Hair and the Three Bears", was given by the pupils of the Pikeville Training School last evening with the following cast:

Golden Hair, Burmah Barker; Big Brain, Robert Myers; Mammy Muff, Brown Swafford; Tiny Cub, Clyde O'Neal; Forest Queen, Winnie Myers; Ancient Bard, Gaither Caldwell; Lightfoot, Nannie Swafford; Airy, Mattie Farmer; Frailty, Hester McGinnis; Faithful, Eliza Stephens; Will-o-the-Wisp, Mary Ross Loyd; Scepter Bearer, Leland Ferguson; Crown Bearer, King Deakins; Chorus of Forest Children.

The following is a synopsis of the operetta:

The voice of Golden Hair, a little flower girl, scatters the Forest Children. She begs that the sweet singers return. Lightfoot and Airy return and invite Golden Hair to become one of their merry band. Golden Hair accepts, and is then warned by Lightfoot to beware of their beautiful queen. The Forest Queen summons Frailty, one of her subjects, and reveals to her the fact that Bruin, who has made his home in her domain, has rare jewels which she covets. She seeks to steal these jewels for her. Frailty tells of Golden Hair. The queen sends her in search of the little flower girl. She, Lightfoot and Airy return, bringing Golden Hair with them. The queen, delighted with the little flower girl's grace and beauty, names her Golden Hair and makes her a princess.

"A maiden with such charms
That she's proof against all harm"

The bard warns Golden Hair to beware of the queen. Lightfoot, Airy and Frailty go to call the queen's subjects, who return with them and pay homage to the princess. While at a meal, the bears hear the merry song of the Forest Children and hasten to scatter the foe. They return with a loud hurrah for each bear. The queen promises wealth and wisdom if the young princess will go to the Bears' home and steal their jewels. Golden Hair consents. The Bard appears and again warns Golden Hair. Then his sweet lullaby wafts her into dreamland. The three bears discover the sleeping princess, but are frightened away by the will-o-the-wisp, who calls the forest children to her assistance. The Forest Children gather protectively around the maiden and are soothed into slumber by the Bard's lullaby. Golden Hair finally ends her investigations by going to sleep upon Tiny Cub's bed where she is found by the three bears. They secure the house, forgetting, in their excitement, the open window by Tiny Cub's bed. The Bard calls to Golden Hair to come quickly for her life. Golden Hair, waving goodbye to the astonished bears, disappears through the window. While the Forest Children are searching for their loved one, Faithful reveals that the queen has tempted Golden Hair to go to the Bears' house, and that probably she has met her death there. The enraged Forest Children depose the queen. She retires in sadness from the Forest Land. The merry voice of Golden Hair is heard in the distance. The Forest Children hasten to greet her, and escort her and the Bard back to the lovely dale. The Bard is crowned in place of the faithless queen.

The Forest Children gather protectively around the maiden and are soothed into slumber by the Bard's lullaby. Golden Hair finally ends her investigations by going to sleep upon Tiny Cub's bed where she is found by the three bears. They secure the house, forgetting, in their excitement, the open window by Tiny Cub's bed. The Bard calls to Golden Hair to come quickly for her life. Golden Hair, waving goodbye to the astonished bears, disappears through the window. While the Forest Children are searching for their loved one, Faithful reveals that the queen has tempted Golden Hair to go to the Bears' house, and that probably she has met her death there. The enraged Forest Children depose the queen. She retires in sadness from the Forest Land. The merry voice of Golden Hair is heard in the distance. The Forest Children hasten to greet her, and escort her and the Bard back to the lovely dale. The Bard is crowned in place of the faithless queen.

The Forest Children gather protectively around the maiden and are soothed into slumber by the Bard's lullaby. Golden Hair finally ends her investigations by going to sleep upon Tiny Cub's bed where she is found by the three bears. They secure the house, forgetting, in their excitement, the open window by Tiny Cub's bed. The Bard calls to Golden Hair to come quickly for her life. Golden Hair, waving goodbye to the astonished bears, disappears through the window. While the Forest Children are searching for their loved one, Faithful reveals that the queen has tempted Golden Hair to go to the Bears' house, and that probably she has met her death there. The enraged Forest Children depose the queen. She retires in sadness from the Forest Land. The merry voice of Golden Hair is heard in the distance. The Forest Children hasten to greet her, and escort her and the Bard back to the lovely dale. The Bard is crowned in place of the faithless queen.

The Forest Children gather protectively around the maiden and are soothed into slumber by the Bard's lullaby. Golden Hair finally ends her investigations by going to sleep upon Tiny Cub's bed where she is found by the three bears. They secure the house, forgetting, in their excitement, the open window by Tiny Cub's bed. The Bard calls to Golden Hair to come quickly for her life. Golden Hair, waving goodbye to the astonished bears, disappears through the window. While the Forest Children are searching for their loved one, Faithful reveals that the queen has tempted Golden Hair to go to the Bears' house, and that probably she has met her death there. The enraged Forest Children depose the queen. She retires in sadness from the Forest Land. The merry voice of Golden Hair is heard in the distance. The Forest Children hasten to greet her, and escort her and the Bard back to the lovely dale. The Bard is crowned in place of the faithless queen.

The Forest Children gather protectively around the maiden and are soothed into slumber by the Bard's lullaby. Golden Hair finally ends her investigations by going to sleep upon Tiny Cub's bed where she is found by the three bears. They secure the house, forgetting, in their excitement, the open window by Tiny Cub's bed. The Bard calls to Golden Hair to come quickly for her life. Golden Hair, waving goodbye to the astonished bears, disappears through the window. While the Forest Children are searching for their loved one, Faithful reveals that the queen has tempted Golden Hair to go to the Bears' house, and that probably she has met her death there. The enraged Forest Children depose the queen. She retires in sadness from the Forest Land. The merry voice of Golden Hair is heard in the distance. The Forest Children hasten to greet her, and escort her and the Bard back to the lovely dale. The Bard is crowned in place of the faithless queen.

The Forest Children gather protectively around the maiden and are soothed into slumber by the Bard's lullaby. Golden Hair finally ends her investigations by going to sleep upon Tiny Cub's bed where she is found by the three bears. They secure the house, forgetting, in their excitement, the open window by Tiny Cub's bed. The Bard calls to Golden Hair to come quickly for her life. Golden Hair, waving goodbye to the astonished bears, disappears through the window. While the Forest Children are searching for their loved one, Faithful reveals that the queen has tempted Golden Hair to go to the Bears' house, and that probably she has met her death there. The enraged Forest Children depose the queen. She retires in sadness from the Forest Land. The merry voice of Golden Hair is heard in the distance. The Forest Children hasten to greet her, and escort her and the Bard back to the lovely dale. The Bard is crowned in place of the faithless queen.

The Forest Children gather protectively around the maiden and are soothed into slumber by the Bard's lullaby. Golden Hair finally ends her investigations by going to sleep upon Tiny Cub's bed where she is found by the three bears. They secure the house, forgetting, in their excitement, the open window by Tiny Cub's bed. The Bard calls to Golden Hair to come quickly for her life. Golden Hair, waving goodbye to the astonished bears, disappears through the window. While the Forest Children are searching for their loved one, Faithful reveals that the queen has tempted Golden Hair to go to the Bears' house, and that probably she has met her death there. The enraged Forest Children depose the queen. She retires in sadness from the Forest Land. The merry voice of Golden Hair is heard in the distance. The Forest Children hasten to greet her, and escort her and the Bard back to the lovely dale. The Bard is crowned in place of the faithless queen.

The Forest Children gather protectively around the maiden and are soothed into slumber by the Bard's lullaby. Golden Hair finally ends her investigations by going to sleep upon Tiny Cub's bed where she is found by the three bears. They secure the house, forgetting, in their excitement, the open window by Tiny Cub's bed. The Bard calls to Golden Hair to come quickly for her life. Golden Hair, waving goodbye to the astonished bears, disappears through the window. While the Forest Children are searching for their loved one, Faithful reveals that the queen has tempted Golden Hair to go to the Bears' house, and that probably she has met her death there. The enraged Forest Children depose the queen. She retires in sadness from the Forest Land. The merry voice of Golden Hair is heard in the distance. The Forest Children hasten to greet her, and escort her and the Bard back to the lovely dale. The Bard is crowned in place of the faithless queen.

The Forest Children gather protectively around the maiden and are soothed into slumber by the Bard's lullaby. Golden Hair finally ends her investigations by going to sleep upon Tiny Cub's bed where she is found by the three bears. They secure the house, forgetting, in their excitement, the open window by Tiny Cub's bed. The Bard calls to Golden Hair to come quickly for her life. Golden Hair, waving goodbye to the astonished bears, disappears through the window. While the Forest Children are searching for their loved one, Faithful reveals that the queen has tempted Golden Hair to go to the Bears' house, and that probably she has met her death there. The enraged Forest Children depose the queen. She retires in sadness from the Forest Land. The merry voice of Golden Hair is heard in the distance. The Forest Children hasten to greet her, and escort her and the Bard back to the lovely dale. The Bard is crowned in place of the faithless queen.

The Forest Children gather protectively around the maiden and are soothed into slumber by the Bard's lullaby. Golden Hair finally ends her investigations by going to sleep upon Tiny Cub's bed where she is found by the three bears. They secure the house, forgetting, in their excitement, the open window by Tiny Cub's bed. The Bard calls to Golden Hair to come quickly for her life. Golden Hair, waving goodbye to the astonished bears, disappears through the window. While the Forest Children are searching for their loved one, Faithful reveals that the queen has tempted Golden Hair to go to the Bears' house, and that probably she has met her death there. The enraged Forest Children depose the queen. She retires in sadness from the Forest Land. The merry voice of Golden Hair is heard in the distance. The Forest Children hasten to greet her, and escort her and the Bard back to the lovely dale. The Bard is crowned in place of the faithless queen.

The Forest Children gather protectively around the maiden and are soothed into slumber by the Bard's lullaby. Golden Hair finally ends her investigations by going to sleep upon Tiny Cub's bed where she is found by the three bears. They secure the house, forgetting, in their excitement, the open window by Tiny Cub's bed. The Bard calls to Golden Hair to come quickly for her life. Golden Hair, waving goodbye to the astonished bears, disappears through the window. While the Forest Children are searching for their loved one, Faithful reveals that the queen has tempted Golden Hair to go to the Bears' house, and that probably she has met her death there. The enraged Forest Children depose the queen. She retires in sadness from the Forest Land. The merry voice of Golden Hair is heard in the distance. The Forest Children hasten to greet her, and escort her and the Bard back to the lovely dale. The Bard is crowned in place of the faithless queen.

The Forest Children gather protectively around the maiden and are soothed into slumber by the Bard's lullaby. Golden Hair finally ends her investigations by going to sleep upon Tiny Cub's bed where she is found by the three bears. They secure the house, forgetting, in their excitement, the open window by Tiny Cub's bed. The Bard calls to Golden Hair to come quickly for her life. Golden Hair, waving goodbye to the astonished bears, disappears through the window. While the Forest Children are searching for their loved one, Faithful reveals that the queen has tempted Golden Hair to go to the Bears' house, and that probably she has met her death there. The enraged Forest Children depose the queen. She retires in sadness from the Forest Land. The merry voice of Golden Hair is heard in the distance. The Forest Children hasten to greet her, and escort her and the Bard back to the lovely dale. The Bard is crowned in place of the faithless queen.

The Forest Children gather protectively around the maiden and are soothed into slumber by the Bard's lullaby. Golden Hair finally ends her investigations by going to sleep upon Tiny Cub's bed where she is found by the three bears. They secure the house, forgetting, in their excitement, the open window by Tiny Cub's bed. The Bard calls to Golden Hair to come quickly for her life. Golden Hair, waving goodbye to the astonished bears, disappears through the window. While the Forest Children are searching for their loved one, Faithful reveals that the queen has tempted Golden Hair to go to the Bears' house, and that probably she has met her death there. The enraged Forest Children depose the queen. She retires in sadness from the Forest Land. The merry voice of Golden Hair is heard in the distance. The Forest Children hasten to greet her, and escort her and the Bard back to the lovely dale. The Bard is crowned in place of the faithless queen.

The Forest Children gather protectively around the maiden and are soothed into slumber by the Bard's lullaby. Golden Hair finally ends her investigations by going to sleep upon Tiny Cub's bed where she is found by the three bears. They secure the house, forgetting, in their excitement, the open window by Tiny Cub's bed. The Bard calls to Golden Hair to come quickly for her life. Golden Hair, waving goodbye to the astonished bears, disappears through the window. While the Forest Children are searching for their loved one, Faithful reveals that the queen has tempted Golden Hair to go to the Bears' house, and that probably she has met her death there. The enraged Forest Children depose the queen. She retires in sadness from the Forest Land. The merry voice of Golden Hair is heard in the distance. The Forest Children hasten to greet her, and escort her and the Bard back to the lovely dale. The Bard is crowned in place of the faithless queen.

The Forest Children gather protectively around the maiden and are soothed into slumber by the Bard's lullaby. Golden Hair finally ends her investigations by going to sleep upon Tiny Cub's bed where she is found by the three bears. They secure the house, forgetting, in their excitement, the open window by Tiny Cub's bed. The Bard calls to Golden Hair to come quickly for her life. Golden Hair, waving goodbye to the astonished bears, disappears through the window. While the Forest Children are searching for their loved one, Faithful reveals that the queen has tempted Golden Hair to go to the Bears' house, and that probably she has met her death there. The enraged Forest Children depose the queen. She retires in sadness from the Forest Land. The merry voice of Golden Hair is heard in the distance. The Forest Children hasten to greet her, and escort her and the Bard back to the lovely dale. The Bard is crowned in place of the faithless queen.

The Forest Children gather protectively around the maiden and are soothed into slumber by the Bard's lullaby. Golden Hair finally ends her investigations by going to sleep upon Tiny Cub's bed where she is found by the three bears. They secure the house, forgetting, in their excitement, the open window by Tiny Cub's bed. The Bard calls to Golden Hair to come quickly for her life. Golden Hair, waving goodbye to the astonished bears, disappears through the window. While the Forest Children are searching for their loved one, Faithful reveals that the queen has tempted Golden Hair to go to the Bears' house, and that probably she has met her death there. The enraged Forest Children depose the queen. She retires in sadness from the Forest Land. The merry voice of Golden Hair is heard in the distance. The Forest Children hasten to greet her, and escort her and the Bard back to the lovely dale. The Bard is crowned in place of the faithless queen.

The Forest Children gather protectively around the maiden and are soothed into slumber by the Bard's lullaby. Golden Hair finally ends her investigations by going to sleep upon Tiny Cub's bed where she is found by the three bears. They secure the house, forgetting, in their excitement, the open window by Tiny Cub's bed. The Bard calls to Golden Hair to come quickly for her life. Golden Hair, waving goodbye to the astonished bears, disappears through the window. While the Forest Children are searching for their loved one, Faithful reveals that the queen has tempted Golden Hair to go to the Bears' house, and that probably she has met her death there. The enraged Forest Children depose the queen. She retires in sadness from the Forest Land. The merry voice of Golden Hair is heard in the distance. The Forest Children hasten to greet her, and escort her and the Bard back to the lovely dale. The Bard is crowned in place of the faithless queen.

The Forest Children gather protectively around the maiden and are soothed into slumber by the Bard's lullaby. Golden Hair finally ends her investigations by going to sleep upon Tiny Cub's bed where she is found by the three bears. They secure the house, forgetting, in their excitement, the open window by Tiny Cub's bed. The Bard calls to Golden Hair to come quickly for her life. Golden Hair, waving goodbye to the astonished bears, disappears through the window. While the Forest Children are searching for their loved one, Faithful reveals that the queen has tempted Golden Hair to go to the Bears' house, and that probably she has met her death there. The enraged Forest Children depose the queen. She retires in sadness from the Forest Land. The merry voice of Golden Hair is heard in the distance. The Forest Children hasten to greet her, and escort her and the Bard back to the lovely dale. The Bard is crowned in place of the faithless queen.

The Forest Children gather protectively around the maiden and are soothed into slumber by the Bard's lullaby. Golden Hair finally ends her investigations by going to sleep upon Tiny Cub's bed where she is found by the three bears. They secure the house, forgetting, in their excitement, the open window by Tiny Cub's bed. The Bard calls to Golden Hair to come quickly for her life. Golden Hair, waving goodbye to the astonished bears, disappears through the window. While the Forest Children are searching for their loved one, Faithful reveals that the queen has tempted Golden Hair to go to the Bears' house, and that probably she has met her death there. The enraged Forest Children depose the queen. She retires in sadness from the Forest Land. The merry voice of Golden Hair is heard in the distance. The Forest Children hasten to greet her, and escort her and the Bard back to the lovely dale. The Bard is crowned in place of the faithless queen.

The Forest Children gather protectively around the maiden and are soothed into slumber by the Bard's lullaby. Golden Hair finally ends her investigations by going to sleep upon Tiny Cub's bed where she is found by the three bears. They secure the house, forgetting, in their excitement, the open window by Tiny Cub's bed. The Bard calls to Golden Hair to come quickly for her life. Golden Hair, waving goodbye to the astonished bears, disappears through the window. While the Forest Children are searching for their loved one, Faithful reveals that the queen has tempted Golden Hair to go to the Bears' house, and that probably she has met her death there. The enraged Forest Children depose the queen. She retires in sadness from the Forest Land. The merry voice of Golden Hair is heard in the distance. The Forest Children hasten to greet her, and escort her and the Bard back to the lovely dale. The Bard is crowned in place of the faithless queen.

The Forest Children gather protectively around the maiden and are soothed into slumber by the Bard's lullaby. Golden Hair finally ends her investigations by going to sleep upon Tiny Cub's bed where she is found by the three bears. They secure the house, forgetting, in their excitement, the open window by Tiny Cub's bed. The Bard calls to Golden Hair to come quickly for her life. Golden Hair, waving goodbye to the astonished bears, disappears through the window. While the Forest Children are searching for their loved one, Faithful reveals that the queen has tempted Golden Hair to go to the Bears' house, and that probably she has met her death there. The enraged Forest Children depose the queen. She retires in sadness from the Forest Land. The merry voice of Golden Hair is heard in the distance. The Forest Children hasten to greet her, and escort her and the Bard back to the lovely dale. The Bard is crowned in place of the faithless queen.

The Forest Children gather protectively around the maiden and are soothed into slumber by the Bard's lullaby. Golden Hair finally ends her investigations by going to sleep upon Tiny Cub's bed where she is found by the three bears. They secure the house, forgetting, in their excitement, the open window by Tiny Cub's bed. The Bard calls to Golden Hair to come quickly for her life. Golden Hair, waving goodbye to the astonished bears, disappears through the window. While the Forest Children are searching for their loved one, Faithful reveals that the queen has tempted Golden Hair to go to the Bears' house, and that probably she has met her death there. The enraged Forest Children depose the queen. She retires in sadness from the Forest Land. The merry voice of Golden Hair is heard in the distance. The Forest Children hasten to greet her, and escort her and the Bard back to the lovely dale. The Bard is crowned in place of the faithless queen.

The Forest Children gather protectively around the maiden and are soothed into slumber by the Bard's lullaby. Golden Hair finally ends her investigations by going to sleep upon Tiny Cub's bed where she is found by the three bears. They secure the house, forgetting, in their excitement, the open window by Tiny Cub's bed. The Bard calls to Golden Hair to come quickly for her life. Golden Hair, waving goodbye to the astonished bears, disappears through the window. While the Forest Children are searching for their loved one, Faithful reveals that the queen has tempted Golden Hair to go to the Bears' house, and that probably she has met her death there. The enraged Forest Children depose the queen. She retires in sadness from the Forest Land. The merry voice of Golden Hair is heard in the distance. The Forest Children hasten to greet her, and escort her and the Bard back to the lovely dale. The Bard is crowned in place of the faithless queen.

The Forest Children gather protectively around the maiden and are soothed into slumber by the Bard's lullaby. Golden Hair finally ends her investigations by going to sleep upon Tiny Cub's bed where she is found by the three bears. They secure the house, forgetting, in their excitement, the open window by Tiny Cub's bed. The Bard calls to Golden Hair to come quickly for her life. Golden Hair, waving goodbye to the astonished bears, disappears through the window. While the Forest Children are searching for their loved one, Faithful reveals that the queen has tempted Golden Hair to go to the Bears' house, and that probably she has met her death there. The enraged Forest Children depose the queen. She retires in sadness from the Forest Land. The merry voice of Golden Hair is heard in the distance. The Forest Children hasten to greet her, and escort her and the Bard back to the lovely dale. The Bard is crowned in place of the faithless queen.

The Forest Children gather protectively around the maiden and are soothed into slumber by the Bard's lullaby. Golden Hair finally ends her investigations by going to sleep upon Tiny Cub's bed where she is found by the three bears. They secure the house, forgetting, in their excitement, the open window by Tiny Cub's bed. The Bard calls to Golden Hair to come quickly for her life. Golden Hair, waving goodbye to the astonished bears, disappears through the window. While the Forest Children are searching for their loved one, Faithful reveals that the queen has tempted Golden Hair to go to the Bears' house, and that probably she has met her death there. The enraged Forest Children depose the queen. She retires in sadness from the Forest Land. The merry voice of Golden Hair is heard in the distance. The Forest Children hasten to greet her, and escort her and the Bard back to the lovely dale. The Bard is crowned in place of the faithless queen.

The Forest Children gather protectively around the maiden and are soothed into slumber by the Bard's lullaby. Golden Hair finally ends her investigations by going to sleep upon Tiny Cub's bed where she is found by the three bears. They secure the house, forgetting, in their excitement, the open window by Tiny Cub's bed. The Bard calls to Golden Hair to come quickly for her life. Golden Hair, waving goodbye to the astonished bears, disappears through the window. While the Forest Children are searching for their loved one, Faithful reveals that the queen has tempted Golden Hair to go to the Bears' house, and that probably she has met her death there. The enraged Forest Children depose the queen. She retires in sadness from the Forest Land. The merry voice of Golden Hair is heard in the distance. The Forest Children hasten to greet her, and escort her and the Bard back to the lovely dale. The Bard is crowned in place of the faithless queen.

The Forest Children gather protectively around the maiden and are soothed into slumber by the Bard's lullaby. Golden Hair finally ends her investigations by going to sleep upon Tiny Cub's bed where she is found by the three bears. They secure the house, forgetting, in their excitement, the open window by Tiny Cub's bed. The Bard calls to Golden Hair to come quickly for her life. Golden Hair, waving goodbye to the astonished bears, disappears through the window. While the Forest Children are searching for their loved one, Faithful reveals that the queen has tempted Golden Hair to go to the Bears' house, and that probably she has met her death there. The enraged Forest Children depose the queen. She retires in sadness from the Forest Land. The merry voice of Golden Hair is heard in the distance. The Forest Children hasten to greet her, and escort her and the Bard back to the lovely dale. The Bard is crowned in place of the faithless queen.

The Forest Children gather protectively around the maiden and are soothed into slumber by the Bard's lullaby. Golden Hair finally ends her investigations by going to sleep upon Tiny Cub's bed where she is found by the three bears. They secure the house, forgetting, in their excitement, the open window by Tiny Cub's bed. The Bard calls to Golden Hair to come quickly for her life. Golden Hair, waving goodbye to the astonished bears, disappears through the window. While the Forest Children are searching for their loved one, Faithful reveals that the queen has tempted Golden Hair to go to the Bears' house, and that probably she has met her death there. The enraged Forest Children depose the queen. She retires in sadness from the Forest Land. The merry voice of Golden Hair is heard in the distance. The Forest Children hasten to greet her, and escort her and the Bard back to the lovely dale. The Bard is crowned in place of the faithless queen.

The Forest Children gather protectively around the maiden and are soothed into slumber by the Bard's lullaby. Golden Hair finally ends her investigations by going to sleep upon Tiny Cub's bed where she is found by the three bears. They secure the house, forgetting, in their excitement, the open window by Tiny Cub's bed. The Bard calls to Golden Hair to come quickly for her life. Golden Hair, waving goodbye to the astonished bears, disappears through the window. While the Forest Children are searching for their loved one, Faithful reveals that the queen has tempted Golden Hair to go to the Bears' house, and that probably she has met her death there. The enraged Forest Children depose the queen. She retires in sadness from the Forest Land. The merry voice of Golden Hair is heard in the distance. The Forest Children hasten to greet her, and escort her and the Bard back to the lovely dale. The Bard is crowned in place of the faithless queen.

The Forest Children gather protectively around the maiden and are soothed into slumber by the Bard's lullaby. Golden Hair finally ends her investigations by going to sleep upon Tiny Cub's bed where she is found by the three bears. They secure the house, forgetting, in their excitement, the open window by Tiny Cub's bed. The Bard calls to Golden Hair to come quickly for her life. Golden Hair, waving goodbye to the astonished bears, disappears through the window. While the Forest Children are searching for their loved one, Faithful reveals that the queen has tempted Golden Hair to go to the Bears' house, and that probably she has met her death there. The enraged Forest Children depose the